FLAMES LEAP SKYWARD from the gasoline-splattered wrecked airplane in which Thomas G. Griffith, 27, of near Canal Winchester was killed here Sunday afternoon. The five-place passenger ship plunged into the heart of Forest cemetery after a takeoff from Elsea Airport. Motor failure, caused by a bird's nest, is blamed for the accident. BIRD'S NEST CAUSES PILOT'S DEATH

Plane Plunges Into Heart Of Forest Cemetery Sunday

A 27-year-old veteran pilot and aviation instructor was killed here Sunday afternoon when his cabin airplane crashed into the heart of Forest cemetery.

The pilot was identified as Thomas G. Griffith of Canal Winchester Route 2. He had been employed at Elsea Airport here as an engine and aircraft mechanic.

Ironically, another flying thing—a bird—has been given official blame for the accident. The bird had been building a nest in the carburetor intake tube, thus shutting off the engine's air supply.

Griffith's plane, a five-passenger Howard powered by a 450-horsepower Pratt and Whitney engine, was hangared here by Griffith who had been working at the Circleville airport the last three weeks.

Griffith, who had taken a Circleville trip to Detroit Friday, had taken off at about 2:40 p. m. Sunday bound for Detroit to return his passengers home.

THE CIRCLEVILLE trio was made up of Mr. and Mrs. Phil Smith and James I. Smith III.

Airport personnel reported that Griffith's takeoff was smooth, that the ship had reached 150 to 200 feet of altitude above the tree-studded cemetery.

Airmen, who watched Griffith's departure, said the powerful motor seemed to sputter haltingly and that the heavy ship lost altitude quickly.

While some "eyewitnesses" reported they saw the plane "afire" while it still was airborne, local airport spokesmen said the smoke seen was only normal exhaust.

Felix Sandusky, inspector for the Civil Aeronautics Board who made a close study of the plane wreckage Monday, reported that particles of sticks, grass and twine which went into the making of a bird's nest, had clogged the plane carburetor's air supply intake tube.

He said Griffith probably missed the obstruction in his checkups since the foreign matter was about two and one half feet from the intake opening.

Bob Elsea, airport owner who assisted Sandusky in his probe, advanced the theory that the nest was in the process of being built and that twine used by the bird was taken from nearby fields. He said the twine was similar to that used to stake up tomato plants.

However, the airmen stressed that Griffith had only recently installed a new motor in the ship, had given it a complete overhaul and had spent all Sunday morning checking the plane in preparation for the Detroit trip.

DENYING THAT tricky air currents arising out of the cemetery was the cause, local airmen were quick in rolling out their light planes and putting in hours out of the Elsea strip Sunday afternoon after the accident.

Federal Agents Keep Close Eye On Stockyards

WASHINGTON, June 18—The government will be watching stockyard shipments closely this week to determine whether cattle stocks remain as close to normal as they have been in recent days.

Price Stabilizer DiSalle denies that there has been any meat strike by farmers. He said the early drop in marketings was normal because cattlemen just wanted to wait and see what would happen.

DiSalle has told congressmen he is definitely convinced the controls and rollbacks will work, and that there has not been, and will not be, any black markets.

He said, however, that farmers do not have to fear any future rollbacks, after the two scheduled ones, and denied that any rationing plan was being contemplated.

F. W. Specht, president of Armour and Company, expressed the opinion that those who oppose controls can and should prove their case by producing more food of better quality at lowest cost.

Specht said he vigorously disagreed that controls are a lesser evil, but he felt that everyone who disagrees has the responsibility of proving his position—with more food at relatively lower prices.

Margaret Snubs Political Topics

LUXEMBURG, June 18—Margaret Truman was scheduled to leave the duchy of Luxembourg today by motor car for Paris in another lap of her European tour.

The U. S. President's daughter placed a wreath on the grave of Luxembourg's unknown soldier yesterday and made a tour of the Ardennes region.

She told a reporter who had asked her a political question: "I am an artist and I don't mix in politics."

Amendments On Tax Bill May Be Banned In House

WASHINGTON, June 18—The House Democratic leadership plans today to override GOP opposition and send the $7,233,000,000 tax bill to the floor under a procedure barring individual amendments.

This will leave the way open for GOP opponents to make one overall attempt just before the final vote is taken to amend the bill or return it to the Ways and Means Committee without House approval.

This is the procedure normally followed by both Democrats and Republicans when in control of the House. The theory is that 435 members can act intelligently to write a tax bill on the floor.

Ways and Means Committee Chairman Doughton, (D) N. C., will ask the rules committee tomorrow to clear the bill to the floor under a "closed rule" barring individual amendments.

Debate on the measure is scheduled to open in the House Wednesday and Thursday. The final vote will probably come immediately thereafter.

THE BILL IS expected to receive considerable Republican as well as Democratic support when the final tallies are taken. The measure was approved by the Ways and Means Committee Friday by a 19 to 6 vote, with all 15 Democrats and four of the 10 Republicans voting for it.

The bill represented four-and-one-half months' work by the committee, but fell short of the $10 billion in new revenue requested by President Truman.

Following House clearance, the measure goes to the Senate Finance Committee. Enactment of the measure is not anticipated before early Fall.

French Middle Coalition Keeps Power In Election

PARIS, June 18 — France's middle-of-the-road coalition maintained power today in the results of Sunday's election that cost the Communists strength and made the Rightist Party of Gen. Charles de Gaulle the strongest single group in the new national assembly.

Barring any sudden reversal, it is clear that the coalition group headed by Radical Socialist Premier Henri Queuille has carried the country and the African colonies.

The Communists garnered the heaviest popular vote, but because of various coalitions and party groupings lined up against them, the Reds will lose rather than gain in the actual assembly seating. Final results may show that they have lost up to 83 seats, with a total of 100 as against the previous 183.

Incomplete returns shows that the government is assured of 358 seats out of the 625 for which ballots were cast yesterday. There are 627 seats in the chamber, but the French Pacific areas—entitled to two of them—will not vote until late this Summer.

WITH A TOTAL of 17,103,493 votes counted out of a total of almost 25 million, the numerical and percentage standings were as follows:

Communists: 4,406,301 or 25.76 percent.
DeGaullists: 3,564,833 or 20.84 percent.

Following are the tallies for the center groups between left and right which comprise the "Third" and "Fourth" Force coalitions (The exact manner in which the deputies will vote when the assembly convenes in unpredictable):

Socialists: 2,591,709 or 15.15 percent.
Popular Republicans: 2,084,013 or 12.18 percent.

Independents: 2,049,113 or 11.98 percent.

Radicals: 94,667 or 5.42 percent.

Radical Socialists: 571,567 or 3.34 percent.

Resistance Workers (UDSR): 181,996 or 1.06 percent.

Miscellaneous: 353,103 or 2.06 percent.

While the Communists piled up a larger popular vote than DeGaulle's RPF (Rally of the French People), the conditions of France's new electoral law are such as to make their representation in the new national assembly less than that of the rightwingers.

DeGaulle is expected to emerge with between 120 and 125 seats.

The election was rendered highly complicated by various political groupings and coalitions against both the Communists and DeGaulle.

In between were the Socialists, Popular Republicans, Radicals, Radical Socialists, Resistance Workers and the splinter or "miscellaneous" parties.

The independents, who are expected to win about 100 seats, are the "unknown factors," but will not side with the Communists in any case.

THE QUEUILLE coalition faces delicate negotiations to keep the independent or "Fourth Force" into line with its own so-called "Third Force."

The "Fourth Force," headed by Former Premier Edouard Daladier, consists of various Catholic parties, conservatives, nominal independents and the "peasant" group which the Communists tried hard to win.

Daladier's group opposed Communism and DeGaulle's equally and attacked the incumbent government on the grounds of its controls and restrictions.

It demanded a return to the free enterprise system that prevailed in France before World War I.

DeGaulle, now certain to be a major factor in future policies although not a candidate himself, backed his rightwing platform on a demand for greater French representation in foreign affairs.

RPF election speeches featured charges that France had allowed herself to become a satellite nation of the United States.

LAST WHACK DUE—MAYBE

Legislature To Consider Lausche's Several Vetoes

COLUMBUS, June 18—Ohio's lack-lustre legislature comes back to Columbus tomorrow to consider Governor Lausche's numerous vetoes, to take a last whack—maybe—at giving additional state aid to schools, and then to call it quits—again maybe—for the balance of the biennium.

Because of the press of business before it, the lawmakers may find that Tuesday is as long as that infamous Friday of June 1.

It actually was Sunday, June 3, before the lawmakers wound up their working sessions, although with their clocks covered the solons persisted in the illusion it was still Friday.

In addition to the vetoes and possible action on school legislation, which died in a conference committee June 3 when house and senate conferees were unable to reach agreement, there is considerable pressure built up to revive stream pollution and fair employment practices legislation.

EVEN IF ALL other matters are settled, final adjournment may be junked and a lengthy recess substituted, according to some reports.

Some die-hard Republicans want to recess until September or October and then come back of their own volition to recodify the state's laws, instead of permitting the governor to call a special session for that purpose.

Of Governor Lausche's dozen or so vetoes of the legislature's 256 enactments, the one which seems to stand the best chance of being sustained seems to be that of the bill which would have given the state utilities commission authority over city bus fare disputes. It barely passed the house, 72-49, while 81 votes are needed to override.

Another bill which may be lost because of the governor's veto is the "back door" judges pay bill.

This measure, which would increase the pay of common pleas judges during their current terms despite a constitutional prohibition against it, passed the senate 18-13, with 20 votes needed to override in the upper chamber.

The other vetoes, however, probably will be overridden. They include bills to make the attorney general counsel for the turnpike commission, split the state welfare department, and to investigate the state highway department.

THE GOVERNOR still has to act on 25 of the 137 enactments sent to his desk as a result of a bill-signing session June 6. These include the congressional redistricting bill, which he may permit to become law without his signature.

He also still has to act on the $750 million general appropriations bill. He is expected to veto several items in this measure—the only type of bill in which he can veto one or more items and still leave the remainder of the bill stand. On other enactments, he must accept or disapprove the entire bill.

PAIR HURT IN TRAIN MISHAP

Laurelville Youth Killed In Accident Early Sunday

A 17-year-old Laurelville man was killed instantly early Sunday when his auto failed to negotiate a curve in Hocking County and smashed headon into a tree.

He was Lem H. Elkins Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Lem Elkins of Laurelville Route 2. Authorities reported the mishap occurred at about 2 a. m. Sunday on Route 664 near South Bloomingville school.

Officials said the Elkins car went out of control on a curve and smashed headon into a tree, killing the driver instantly.

Elkins' body was thrown free of the car and into a creek by the impact of the crash. He suffered a fractured skull.

He was born May 14, 1934, in Hocking County, son of Lem and Rebecca Finley Elkins.

SURVIVING HIM, in addition to his parents, are two brothers, Billy and Larry, both at home; five sisters, Mrs. Elmer Ross, Mrs. Elzie Collier and Mrs. William Peters of Laurelville and Onita and Linda at home.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Tuesday in Pleasant Hill church south of Adelphi with the Rev. Billy Jones officiating. Burial will be in the churchyard cemetery by direction of Defenbaugh Funeral Home.

Friends may call in the residence, located on the west fork of Pike Run (Route 327), Monday evening.

In another Sunday accident, a Chillicothe couple was injured when their auto was struck by a freight train at the Pennsylvania Railroad crossing at Route 104 west of Circleville.

State Highway Patrolman Clyde Wells identified the driver of the auto as Joseph Hollis, 19, of 395 Neal avenue, Chillicothe.

Wells said the Hollis auto was traveling north on Route 104 when the mishap occurred. The auto was struck by a westbound Pennsylvania train at about 5:50 p. m.

The patrolman said Hollis apparently was aware of the train's presence since the driver applied the brakes of his auto when approaching the crossing.

THE HOLLIS CAR skidded across the crossing, Wells said.

Ohio Father's Day Lists 30 Deaths

Father's Day brought a soaring toll in traffic mishaps and drownings to Ohio as 30 persons died accidental deaths over the weekend.

Twenty persons were killed in traffic crashes, including three in motorcycle accidents. Drownings claimed seven persons.

There was only one aviation accident and that was when a Canal Winchester flying instructor died when his plane crashed into a Circleville cemetery.

U.S. Airmen Win Three Engagements

Ground Troopers Advance Steadily

TOKYO, June 19—(Tuesday)—American airmen scored a spectacular victory Monday in a 73-plane all-jet fight over Northwest Korea in a continuing drive to disrupt enemy supply lines from Manchuria.

Five Russian-type Mig-15 jets were shot down and two damaged in a 15-minute dogfight between 33 American F-86 Sabre jets and an estimated 40 Communist planes.

The Fifth Airforce, reporting on the air combat, said all American planes returned safely to their bases. This was the third big jet battle over Korea's northwestern "Mig Alley" in three days.

Late Monday, 16 Migs crossed the Yalu river border from Manchuria and according to a dispatch from Fifth Airforce headquarters "timidly engaged" four American Sabrejets. There was no damage reported in this engagement.

FAR TO THE SOUTH, United Nations ground troops encountered varying resistance from Communist forces which in some areas launched local counter-thrusts.

The Eighth Army's Monday evening communique said that UN troops advanced 2,000 to 3,000 yards on the east-central front against light Red resistance.

The official Army bulletin said 237 enemy soldiers were killed when Allied troops repulsed a battalion-sized Communist attack in a four-hour battle before dawn Monday on the central front.

Front dispatches said that North Korean Red troops fought tenaciously to defend the last enemy-held ridge line east of the Hwachon reservoir.

North of Kumhwa on the central front, enemy mines and mortar fire turned back a UN tank-infantry team.

On the west-central front, dispatches said heavy Red machinegun and mortar fire prevented Allied troops from taking a strategic hill.

Monday's air combat in Northwest Korea raised the total of enemy planes hit within two days to fourteen, including six destroyed and eight damaged.

On Sunday, an Airforce announcement said, one Mig was shot down and six others damaged in a 20-minute engagement between at least 25 of the Communist jets and 20 Sabres. All (Continued on Page Two)

U.S. Mediation Chief Entering Seaman Dispute

NEW YORK, June 18—Cyrus Ching, the federal government's labor mediation chief, entered the maritime dispute today in an effort to set 650 commercial ships sailing again.

Ching planned to confer in New York with Clyde Mills, his assistant director in the Mediation and Conciliation Service, who has been representing the U. S. in the dispute.

The "no contract no work" tieup has idled shipping in Atlantic, Gulf and Pacific ports, but has not affected the movement of war materials.

The stoppage was ordered at Friday midnight at the expiration of the old contracts, by the National Maritime Union, Marine Engineer Beneficial Association and American Radio Association.

The unions have refused to budge from their original demands which include a 40-hour work week at sea in place of the present 48, a 25 percent increase in pay and vacations paid for by the shipowners at the rate of 50 cents a day for each man employed.

RFC To Cite Ex-Employee

WASHINGTON, June 18—The Reconstruction Finance Corp. said today it has evidence a former employee accepted a vice-president's salary from one of its biggest borrowers while on the RFC payroll.

RFC Administrator W. Stuart Symington identified the employee as Former Assistant Comptroller Allen E. Freeze, now a $22,500 vice-president of Texmass Petroleum Co.

Symington said the case has been turned over to the Justice Department. Texmass owes the RFC $13,768,000 which the government admits it stands little chance of collecting in full.

The Sabres got back unscathed from this duel.

THE AIRFORCE bulletin said the Mig pilots "showed unusual aggressiveness" in their effort to blunt the UN air offensive against southward movements of Red reinforcements and supplies from Manchuria.

In the ground fighting, Red resistance along North Korea's east-central front declined noticeably Monday after having slowed an Allied advance toward the enemy base of Kumsong and a buildup zone east of that city.

From that sector, Red defensive efforts seemed to be fading. This refers to the fighting for ridges above Yangju and Inje. The heights lie south of a strategic valley called the "punch-bowl."

One high point commanding the valley was captured by UN troops Saturday. Then on Sunday the Chinese put up fierce daylong resistance, forcing one Allied tank group to pull back under Red bazooka and artillery fire as well as hand grenades.

Three Persons Hurt In Crash On Route 22

Three out-of-town persons received minor injuries at about noon Saturday in a two-car head-on crash on Route 22 west of Circleville.

Deputy Sheriff Jim Diltz said the mishap occurred at about 12:15 p. m. Saturday at Route 22 and the old Canal Road, about two miles west of Circleville.

Diltz said a car operated west by R. B. Crammer, 51, of Zanesville, pulled out around an auto which was making a left turn into the Canal Road, colliding head-on with an auto operated east by Charles Thompson, 42, of Washington C. H.

Both autos were badly damaged. Estimated speeds at the time of the crash was about 30 miles per hour, Diltz said.

Thompson suffered a lacerated left knee in the mishap, while Crammer suffered a leg injury. Mrs. Crammer, 34, suffered shock.

Plane Falls In Cemetery

on any graves in the cemetery. Actual impact was on a cross-road in about the center of the burial ground.

Edson Crites, superintendent of the cemetery, said that total damage—to roadway, trees and lot sodding—would amount to about $150.

He said only one marker, one provided by the government for a soldier, was scorched and opined the government probably will replace it.

While several persons were visiting graves in the vicinity, none was injured.

Perhaps the closest persons to the crash scene were Mr. and Mrs. Bob Patton and their son, Robert, from Columbus. They were visiting the grave of Patton's father, the late James B. Patton.

Mrs. Patton's 1951 Ford convertible was damaged about the rear end by the heat of the flames which followed as the 200-gallon fuel supply in Griffith's plane ignited. It was driven home under its own power.

PATTON SAID he and his son saw the crash. An Airforce veteran, Patton said he instinctively looked up when he heard the plane's motor sputtering. Patton said:

"I knew he (the pilot) was in trouble. The plane appeared to be under control until one wing struck the upper branches of a large tree. Then it spun downward and crashed."

Patton added that the heat from the fire was too great for assistance to be given the trapped pilot.

Pickaway County sheriff's deputies, city police, state patrolmen and the city fire department were summoned to the scene.

Airmen, with whom Griffith worked at Elsea airport, reported that the pilot had both a commercial and an instructor's license in addition to being a registered mechanic.

Prior to coming to Circleville, Griffith had hanged his plane near Lancaster. He at one time was employed by Curtis-Wright Corp. and had been assistant manager of Van Wert Airport.

A veteran of World War II, Griffith was assigned by the Airforce as a carburetor specialist. He served several months overseas, primarily in England.

Griffith's body, burned nearly beyond recognition, was removed from the smoldering wreckage and taken to Defenbaugh Funeral Home. Later, the body

3 Business Houses Entered By Burglars

Three Circleville business places were burglarized last weekend.

City police reported that Drake's Produce, Circleville Basic Construction and the Sinclair bulk plant were entered over the weekend.

At the produce house, located at the rear of 222 East Main street, the burglars broke in through a rear door, tried to open the cash register and desk and left through the front door.

Paul Drake, the owner, said nothing was believed missing.

At Basic, located on East Corwin street, Manager Jim Callihan reported, intruders entered the firm's warehouse through a window Friday night.

Callihan, who said no money ever is kept in Basic offices, doubted that loss—if any—would be great. He said the office apparently was not disturbed.

Thieves entered through a side door at the Sinclair plant, 768 South Pickaway street, and broke open a candy machine. Nothing else was reported damaged.

was removed to Canal Winchester for funeral services.

He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Griffith, and by a brother, Frank, 23.

Missing Calf May Be Nice Roast Veal Now

A new way to beat the meat prices has been discovered in Pickaway County.

State Highway Patrolman Clyde Wells said he was called out Saturday to help look for a calf which reportedly fell from a passing stock truck at about midnight.

Wells said driver of a cattle truck which passed through the county at about midnight Friday checked his load at the outskirts of Columbus and found a calf missing.

Stopping another northbound truck, the stock trucker learned that the following trucker had seen a man pulling a calf from the highway near Bell's Siding.

Meanwhile, Wells also received a report that a calf had been hit by a vehicle in that area.

"But when I got there," Wells said, "I couldn't find a trace of

RESHUFFLING MANPOWER

A SUBCOMMITTEE of the Senate Armed Services Committee is convinced important conservation of manpower can be effected in the nation's armed forces. The subcommittee checked 16 training centers of all services out of hundreds within territorial United States and found 85,000 enlisted men and 10,000 officers performing some sort of "overhead function." The panel said:

"A man physically able to play baseball or football daily is physically able to make a worthwhile contribution to the strength of the nation. Likewise, a man physically able to work daily in any profession or trade as a civilian is usually able to perform the same duties for the military.

What the subcommittee wants is not an "overnight" weeding of the able-bodied who are not needed in the "armchair corps," but their gradual replacement by stepping up the recruiting of Wacs and Waves for routine jobs and hiring of more civilians for work that does not require men in uniform.

AMERICA'S STRENGTH

Addressing a graduating class recently, Charles E. Wilson, Defense Mobilizer, said he doubted if any nation would be stupid enough to challenge America, magnificently equipped as it is with atomic weapons, in an all-out war.

"I believe," he said, "the war will be deferred."

Wilson also voiced his confidence that the United States can maintain a strong economy while rearming.

This is a point of view which Americans hear too infrequently. United States is strong—strong enough to lash back at any aggressor and ruin him.

The U. S. would not go unscathed in an all-out war with Russia, but Russia would be so devastatingly crushed as to be beyond recovery. Peace or World War III thus boils down to a question of whether the Kremlin is sane or crazy.

Countries which want to help Uncle Sam fight Communism have one thing in common. They want a substantial down payment.

Russia has started a cultural program for Chinese soldiers, encouraging them to go in for art and literature. With a gun in each hand, of course.

Colorado citizen is all tired out after his own funeral, he reports. He should be grateful he survived it. Few do.

Inside WASHINGTON

MARCH OF EVENTS

President's Temper Curb Politically Significant?

HST Statement on Kem Amendment Very Mild

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—Capital observers see some significance in the restraint used by President Truman in opposing the foreign aid bill rider barring United States aid to any nation shipping war-potential goods to the Soviet bloc.

Senator James P. Kem (R), Missouri, who sponsored the amendment, is a longtime, bitter rival whom the President would probably have liked to blast. Instead, Mr. Truman temperately called language of the rider "hasty," "oversimplified," and "seriously defective."

The mildness of the President's statement of opposition was being prompted by two factors: 1—His growing determination to seek reelection in 1952 and a belief that he must counteract his reputation for belligerency. 2—An attempt to allay public resentment to the firing of Gen. Douglas MacArthur and to disprove Republican charges that the administration has coddled Communists.

● ATTENTION: "FRANCIS"—The old Army mule is fast going out of business on the Korean front.

When Gen. Omar N. Bradley, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, was questioned about use of pack animals at the hearings investigating the firing of General MacArthur he replied that the South Koreans can carry almost as great a load as pack animals in the mountain country.

Besides, Bradley said, United States forces in hill tops are supplied largely by plane. From 100 to 200 tons of supplies are dropped daily, the general reported.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

Donald McLachlan, assistant editor of the London Economist, made a point last March which is pertinent today when both the American State Department and the British Foreign Office seem to have fallen upon hard times. He wrote in the Twentieth Century, a British publication:

"There must have been much turning and tossing in the tombs of great diplomats six weeks ago, when the United Nations assembly almost simultaneously declared China an aggressor and set up a good offices committee to negotiate with Peking—or at least to mediate between Peking and Washington. One needed to be neither pro-Chinese, nor anti-American, nor indeed engaged on any side, to see that here was something ludicrous happening, something that common sense rejects and the diplomatist scoffs at."

This is but an instance of a weakening of the delicate process of diplomacy which is the art of winning friends and soothing enemies for your country. The testimony of General Albert Wedemeyer, apart from supporting the testimony of General MacArthur, established the incapacity of the State Department to hold existing friendships and win new friends. Nor has there been a sufficient consistency in what might be called policy to make friendship secure by the knowledge of what conduct is to be expected.

Wedemeyer had been offered our ambassadorship to China and had expended $900 on what he calls a trousseau for such service. The Chinese Communists objected to this appointment and so Dean Acheson, then under-secretary, bowing to our enemies and scowling at our friends, withdrew the offer from Wedemeyer.

But to get back to death of diplomacy, it would seem that the fault lies in the global concepts which prevail among specialists in foreign affairs. A diplomat is an envoy whose principal is a nation. He is an agent, a messenger, an ambassador, a negotiator.

His limitations are the needs and interests of his employer. When his devotion is to those who are his direct masters, his concepts are controlled by them. When he has become a globalist, a pursuer of internationalism, he has no limitations because he has no principal, even though he is employed by one country. His mind is on world needs; not his own country's necessities. He is all things to all men.

Few of those who believe that they have been building a new world can or will recognize that the errors of our times are in a pattern of behavior; that the global view results not only in a weakening of our own country but actually in the constant strengthening of Soviet Russia. For if there is to be one world, whose world is it to be—ours or theirs? Is it to be a world based on natural law or on Marxian dialectics? And what arguments can be employed—what convincing arguments—to establish Washington or even the United Nations as preferable to the Kremlin? Each advocates universalism, but each has a different concept of management. Thus far, the Kremlin has been more successful, because it has kept itself nationalistic. It works for Russia.

SYNOPSIS
Julie Thornberry has just graduated from college and is devoting herself briefly to her family. She is engaged to be married to Cy Leonard, an ambitious young lawyer, who works in a distant city. Having had speech training at school, Julie secretly hopes to find a career in radio. Affable Mr. Carter, manager of the local radio station, grants her an audition, gives her a chance to do a woman's program. Overwhelmed by this good news, Julie rushes to her father. As together they sip coffee in a small restaurant, Julie discovers that, dark, handsome Jeff Douglas, who runs a local sports shop.

CHAPTER FIVE
CY REACHED over and captured her hand as soon as they were out on the main highway. "Have you been lonesome for me—just a little?"

"Oh, just a little!" she said lightly. She gave his fingers a quick pressure. "Tell me what you've been doing in the big city."

"At the office, or after hours?" he asked teasingly.

"Both, of course!" she laughed. "Well, I never say much about my work—but you're different. There's a case pending next week that has Mr. Ross worried. I can't stay too long tomorrow, Julie, because I've an appointment with a friend who's coming in by plane tomorrow evening at seven. Mr. Ross asked me to be at the airport when he arrives. I thought we might have a leisurely breakfast, say about ten o'clock. And then I'd leave soon after eleven. Okay with you?"

"How about an hour earlier, Cy?" Julie asked quickly.

"Oh, can't wait? That'll be all right. I can certainly get up before nine! That'll give us plenty of time."

Julie's heart sank. Would it give her plenty of time to get to the studio before her program was to begin? And wasn't she lucky to have her script ready? She had a ten o'clock appointment, before the parted this evening. She'd pick her time. She had a sense of guilt, as though she were doing something dishonest by concealing the fact that she was working.

"Does the moon still come up over Lost Lake the way it used to last summer?"

"Same moon exactly, Cy."

Cy looked at her appreciatively. "Honey, you're looking better than the last time I saw you. Guess your vacation is good for you. All that school stuff in the past now."

"A lot of it is highly superficial, isn't it? Who cares about Rush Week, anyway?"

"Just about every freshman who ever goes to college, that's who!" said Cy. "It's important to that."

Kiernan's ONE MAN'S OPINION

Dad seemed very pleased with his Father's Day gifts. He probably won't complain a bit when the bills come in.

But why do the orators look at Dad when they tell the graduating class "it's up to you to straighten out the mess your elders have created?"

We don't know that a necktie and new slippers is sufficient compensation for taking that annual rap.

There is no law against wives and mothers throwing their weight on the side of good and our continuing continental clam-bakes are not exclusively Dad's dilemma.

we drove out one evening after a big rain. I got stuck. Some romance!" He laughed lightly.

It all came back to her with a rush. He must have thought her childish, especially after he had had all that trouble. It was quite late when she'd got in, and her father was waiting downstairs in the living room. Mother was upstairs.

They hadn't appreciated the fact that the two had walked clear into town for help! She recalled it tolerantly now, but at the time she had been furious that her parents had worried about her. Cy was quite capable of taking care of her, she had informed them. And after all, he was a perfect gentleman. Yes, she sighed a little inwardly, Cy was. Indeed, he was a perfect gentleman!

The moon was shining brightly, sending down a shaft of golden light on the rippling surface of Lost Lake. It was a romantic spot, Julie thought, drinking in the beauty of the place.

Cy drew the car up to the hard-packed parking area. There were two other cars already at the lake. They opened their windows wide and sat silently looking at the moonlight on the water. They heard a call; then Julie looked down at the deep end.

"Someone's in swimming!" she explained. "It's still quite a favorite spot to bring one's girl in the evening."

"Sort of crowded," laughed Cy. He took her hand and pulled her to him gently. Julie felt queer. She didn't feel excited, nor happy, nor even especially romantic.

Cy kissed her. But there was no warm response in the pressure of her own lips. They did not speak for a few minutes.

Julie felt his touch on her hand. He was turning the palm up to his lips, kissing it. Then he turned her hand over again and touched the ring he had given her.

"We've never talked about a specific date, Julie. Is it too soon now to ask you when you want to get married?"

Julie caught her breath. She said, "Why not wait until next spring?"

"If that's the way you want it, Julie. I know the smart thing to do is to get myself financially able to take care of a wife. You must know that I've not been able to save very much the first year or so out of school."

"Of course, Cy. I know that you've not had the chance to save much."

NICE WHEN SERVED in individual casseroles, the Potato and Cheese Souffle is hearty enough to satisfy the skeptical men in your family.

Cheese Being Stressed For June Food Dishes

The slices that go into the hurried drugstore sandwich, the chunk that adds so much to a piece of apple pie, the oasis of that Welsh rabbit you whip up for your guests after an evening of cards or television—what would we do without cheese?

Right now, with all dairy products in abundant supply (June is their peak production month) and hence, economical to boot, it is a good time to include cheese main dishes in your menu-making plans.

The following recipes are everyone's favorite, good old American, and will serve six. Here is a dressed-up version of the grilled cheese sandwich which may be served alone, or with a tangy mustard sauce for added flavor. The kids will go for this one.

Grilled Cheese Delights: Grate 3/4 lb. American cheese into a mixing bowl and mix with 1/2 to 2-3 c. chopped stuffed olives. Spread mixture on 6 slices of buttered bread, cover each with another slice of buttered bread, and trim off crusts, if desired.

Spread softened butter generously on outside of sandwiches, both sides. Brown sandwiches immediately on griddle or in a large skillet, turning carefully. By the time both sides are browned, the cheese will be melted. Serve hot, with or without Mustard Sauce.

Mustard Sauce: Melt 3 tbsp. butter in a saucepan; stir in 3 tbsp. flour, 3/4 tsp. salt, few grains of pepper and blend thoroughly. Then add 1 1/2 c. milk and gradually, stirring all the while, and cook until smooth and thickened. Add 1/4 c. prepared mustard and 1 1/2 tsp. worcestershire sauce. Makes 1 1/2 c. of sauce.

Even the men in your family, family of Louisville, Ky.; Mr. and Mrs. Marion W. Jones and family of Columbus; and Mr. and Mrs. James Wells and sons, and Ralph Stevenson of Ashville.

Ben Hogan Is Proven Great Champ

Little Man Wins National Open Again

NEW YORK June 18 — Ben Hogan is the kind of a guy you must be to become a great champion.

In winning his third National Open golf championship in a row on Saturday, Hogan clinched his place among the all-time super-stars of sports, but those who know him are not in the least surprised.

There is no room for softness in a great champion, no room for anything except determination, coolness when the fight gets toughest, the will to sacrifice everything for the sake of winning, and an inherent something that might cause you to him orner.

Hogan has it in large measure. Gene Tunney, Jack Dempsey, Gene Sarazen, Ty Cobb, Babe Ruth—you name the great ones. They all had it.

WHATEVER YOU term it, this is the thing that causes the great performer to perform at his best in the so-called clutch, like Hogan's final round at Oakland Hills Saturday when he clinched the National Open for the third time.

Hogan had all but shot himself out of it on the nightmarish par 70 course with an opening 76 on Thursday.

He shot a 73 on Friday to be five strokes off Bobby Locke's pace with a 149.

Hogan then shot a forenoon 71 on Saturday morning, and in the afternoon's final round became one of only two players to break par in the tournament when he shot a 67, three under regulation figures.

Clayton Heafner, the other man to break par, took a final 69 and finished as runnerup, two strokes behind Hogan, whose clutch splash thus left him little to spare.

Hogan has mellowed somewhat through the years, but he still is as tough emotionally as slender, wiry body is physically and the combination makes him what he is today—the best golfer in the business.

He has tremendous power of concentration, the kind of determination that makes a man begin preparing months ahead for an event of this kind, as he admits he did, and he has the kind of nerves that do their best work when taut as fiddle strings.

Hatters Win Opening Game In 16th, 5-4

Circleville Top Hat softball team opened its 1951 season in Chillicothe Sunday night with a flourish.

The local softballers outwaited the tough Chillicothe Businessmen softball club for 16 innings during the match before copping a 5-4 victory.

Chillicothe held a 4-1 advantage over the locals going into the seventh frame of the game, although the Top Hatters scored singles in each the seventh, eighth and ninth innings to deadlock the game at 4-4 and send it into extra innings.

Both teams went scoreless during the next six innings, while Top Hat scored its game-winning run in the 16th.

Stillman Morrison led off in scoring the final marker, singling and advancing to third on a double by Kenay Reid. Morrison scored on an outfield fly by Wilton Clark.

Next game on tap for the Hatters will be Friday night at Washington C. H., while the Hat crew will play a doubleheader Saturday night in Ted Lewis Park.

Top 3-Year-Old To Be Difficult To Determine

NEW YORK, June 18—Choosing a three-year-old champion in horse racing is going to be a tough proposition this year.

Counterpoint's victory in the Belmont Stakes Saturday opened the doors on the decision, making it more than the triple crown that has to figure in the selection.

The C. V. Whitney colt's triumph in the richest Belmont of all time marked the sixth occasion in the last twenty years, in which a different horse has come home first in the Kentucky Derby, Preakness and the Belmont.

Counterpoint won $82,000 first money by beating Battlefield by four lengths in the mile and a half test. His time was 1:29, four-fifths of a second off the stake record set by his sire, Count Fleet.

Count Fleet, winner of the Derby, came home seventh in the Belmont. Bold, the Preakness winner, didn't run Saturday because of sore shins.

Ashville Scores 9-1 Win Over Winchester '9'

Ashville amateur hardballers chalked up their second win in three starts in the Columbus Sunday Afternoon League Sunday with an easy 9-1 victory over Solts in Canal Winchester. Playing errorless ball behind Pitcher Jack Hix, the Ashvillers tallied their nine runs on 11 safeties and six Solts bobbles.

Solts was able to collect its single run in one blow, a homerun by Rightfielder Stotler. The extra-base ball bounced through a hole in the right-field fence.

Hix whiffed 14 of the opposing batters during the lopsided encounter while permitting Solts seven scattered hits in the nine-inning test.

Next contest for the Ashville hardball team will be at Sunshine Park in Columbus next Sunday against Trowbridge's. Line score of the victory over Solts follows:

Ashville 300 011 004-9 11 0
Solts 010 000 000-1 7 6

A team of 12 members of Pickaway Country Club ranked in last place Sunday during a four-city golf tournament in Groveport.

The local team ranked fourth in the tourney with 39½ points, while London and the host Groveport teams tied for top honors with 73 points each.

Logan, other team in the intercity test, ranked third for the day with 39 1-2 points in the 18-hole match.

Claire Saxton paced the local duffers in the match, shooting a 70-under-par 34 for his first nine holes and 38 on the second nine for a par 72 for the day.

Teacher Bob Friece, usually medalist in most matches, tallied a 37-41 total 78 for the day.

Each of the four teams entered in the contest agreed to make the intercity tourney an annual event, with the local club playing host to next year's affair.

OTHER MEMBERS of the team representing Circleville in the match were—Verlin Blankenship, Aaron Lumpe, Lovell Blankenship, Harry Diehl, Art Marshall, Melvin Mettler, John Teal, Karl Herrmann, Bill Goodchild and Ervin Leist.

New England Lass Is Winner

COLUMBUS, June 18 — Barbara Bruning, pert 18-year-old Wellesley freshman, believes she is "just lucky" today to be the nation's new women's collegiate golf champion.

The freckled Massachusetts girl fought uphill nearly all the way here Saturday to best Kathy McKinnon of Florida Southern in a rattle-dazzle 19-hole finish.

After tying the match on six different occasions, Miss Bruning scored a birdie on the 18th hole to even the count at a one-under par 77. She sank a 15-foot putt for a birdie four on the title-deciding hole while her 18-year-old opponent from Lake Worth, Fla., muffed a curling three-footer to lose the match.

First arrivals included Jim Ferrier and Jack Burke. Ferrier will pair with Sam Snead again to defend the Inverness crown they won last year. Burke will be paired with Jimmy Demaret.

Other teams are Lloyd Mangrum and Cary Middlecoff, Dutch Harrison and Marty Furgol, Clayton Heafner and Johnny Palmer, Porky Oliver and Fred Haas, Robert Vincenzo and Henry Ranson, and Pete Cooper and Al Brosch.

OPS Calendar Gives Deadlines For Complying With Law

Statements 'Must' Be Prepared

Various Trades Given Notices

As a reminder to Pickaway County businessmen, the Columbus district Office of Price Stabilization has issued a "calendar" listing the final dates on which filings of the many OPS statements "must" be made to comply with OPS regulations.

Edward F. Wagner, district OPS chieftain, said that service tradesmen (CPR 34) were to have posted their price charts by last Friday while meat retailers (CPR 25) were expected to have complied with their postings as of Monday.

Ceiling prices of beef must be visibly posted in retail stores and cuts displayed with various grades in separate trays with each tray price tagged, Wagner said.

Other deadlines in the OPS timetable are as follows:

JUNE 30—Retailers of consumer goods—(CPR 7)—Sales of items covered by this regulation cannot be made unless OPS has acknowledged receipt of the retailer's pricing chart.

Coal producers (except Pennsylvania anthracite)—(CPR 3)—Increased labor costs, which may be added to ceiling prices, must be effective on or before this date.

Coal retailers—(CPR SR 2, Rev. 1)—Increased transportation costs which may be added to ceiling prices must be effective on or before this date.

JULY 1—Retailers of consumer goods—(CPR 7)—Last date for marking and tagging items with ceiling prices.

JULY 2—Manufacturers—(CPR 22)—Ceiling prices under General Manufacturers' regulation go into effect. Last date for filing Form 8 reports with OPS, Washington.

AUG. 1—Beef slaughterers, wholesalers, retailers—(CPR 23,

Shots For Polio Not Urged By State Health

COLUMBUS, June 18—State Health Director J. H. D. Porterfield advises against immunization shots in any community this summer where polio reaches large scale proportions.

The New York City health department last week said it would recommend withholding immunization of anyone over six months of age during the polio season.

Dr. Porterfield stated such a precaution is indicated on a basis of reports from foreign countries. These reports show in a number of cases paralysis settled in the area of immunization shot administered shortly before polio was contracted.

The director emphasized, however, that immunization has nothing to do with spreading polio. He said shots tend to lower body resistance, just as in the cases of fatigue, colds and other ailments.

24, 25, 26—Reduction, about four-and-one-half percent below May 20, in prices slaughterers permitted to pay for beef cattle; new, lower wholesale and retail beef ceiling prices in effect.

Restaurants and taverns—(CPR 11)—Last date for bringing prices in compliance; adjustments must be made if not in compliance.

OCT. 1—Beef slaughterers, wholesalers, retailers—(CPR 23, 24, 25, 26)—Third reduction, about four-and-one-half percent below Aug. 1, in prices slaughterers may pay for beef cattle; new lower wholesale and retail beef ceiling prices in effect.

No 'Bootleg' Fireworks Can Be Used In Ohio

COLUMBUS, June 16—Ohioans who intend to celebrate the Fourth of July have fair warning today that "bootleg" fireworks will bring the wrath of the law down upon them.

In years gone by this would be the time for youngsters to start saving for "two-inchers" and "lady-fingers" and roman candles and the like.

But that era is dead and now outlawed. State Industrial relations Chief Albert A. Woldman says that the retail sale of fireworks is illegal and only wholesale purchases can be made.

Advertisements in comic books by out-of-state fireworks manufacturers prompted Woldman to issue a warning that an attorney general's opinion has ruled such sales illegal.

He warned that operators of perennial roadside firecracker stands face a jail term and a stiff fine if they persist in opening up for business in Ohio.
